President's Welcome

It is my pleasure to welcome you to the 2007 meeting of the Social Science History Association. We have an especially exciting meeting this year, thanks in good part to our wonderful program co-chairs and network representatives. We are focusing this year on taking stock of how far we have come in social science history and on identifying the most promising avenues of research for the future. It is a challenge that our members have enthusiastically taken up, as judged both by the richness of the program and the fact that we are poised to have the largest attendance in SSHA history. In addition to our usual range of sessions, from the topical panels to the authors meet critics sessions, there are several special sessions as well. Some focus on special historiographical resources—such as the Thursday session on Teaching the Trans-Atlantic Slave Trade Using an Online Database—and others on new methods, such as Saturday afternoon's special session on Cartographic Design for History. We're also pleased to have a field trip to the Newberry Library Saturday afternoon, focusing on its historic map collection. In addition, after an absence of several years the SSHA is bringing back poster sessions, and I encourage you all to take advantage of this opportunity to learn about a broad range of research projects.

We are especially pleased that H-Net will be holding its annual business meeting this year in conjunction with our conference, and that we will be devoting time here to exploring ways in which SSHA and H-Net can collaborate on a number of fronts in the future.

We hope that you will get a chance not only to catch up with old friends but meet new colleagues at our welcoming reception Thursday evening and the reception that follows our 5:30 pm annual SSHA business meeting on Saturday. As usual, the business meeting features, in addition to reports on the various activities of the SSHA, the awarding of book prizes and the Presidential address. And don't forget to participate actively in our network meetings, at 1 p.m. on Friday and 11:15 a.m. Saturday. This is where plans for next year's conference begin to take shape and offers an important opportunity for members to help shape our annual program.

Finally, it is my pleasure to thank the various organizations who have given their support to the SSHA to help make these meetings the rich scholarly feast that they are. Thanks in particular to the Rockefeller Archives Center, the Center for Advanced Holocaust Studies, and Duke University Press. Welcome again to the SSHA and to Chicago. I know that these will be days of intense debate, reflection, learning, and enjoyment.
